Spielwarenmesse eG is to organize its own fair in India for the first time in the coming year. Kids India will take place in the Bombay Convention & Exhibition Centre in Mumbai from 24–26.10.2013. “The Indian market is ready for a fair with an international impact,” says Ernst Kick, Chief Executive Officer of Spielwarenmesse eG. “More than 800 toy manufacturers, exporters and suppliers ensure that the Indian market grows constantly.” Spielwarenmesse eG is supported by Sports Goods Export Promotion Council (SGEPC), The All India Toy Manufacturers’ Association (TAITMA) and the Indo-German Chamber of Commerce (IGCC) in the organization of Kids India. “IGCC has enormous expertise. It regularly organizes international fairs in India and as our representative for the International Toy Fair in Nuremberg knows the Indian toy market very well,” says Kick. The new fair is intended as a platform for Indian and international exhibitors to present products such as baby and infant articles, licensed products, wooden toys, educational toys and games, sport and leisure and hobby articles. In addition, Spielwarenmesse eG will organize a World of Toys Pavilion so that small and medium enterprises can also offer their products at Kids India. The pavilion will make it easier for companies from all over the world to enter the Indian market.

India – a market with great future potential

Until now the Indian toy industry's sales have been estimated at about 850 million US dollars, which accounts for a share of only 1 per cent of global toy sales. But the Indian middle class is growing all the time. Consumers are paying increasing attention to quality and spend appreciably more money on toys. A growth figure of some 15 per cent already promises an enormous rise in sales.
